WEBER CLUB AND PUBLICITY BUREAU ENTERTAIN CALVIN

A luncheon was given in honor of E. E. Calvin, president of the Union Pacific railroad and federal manager of the Union Pacific system, by the directors of the Weber club and the Ogden Publicity bureau, in the club rooms this noon. A number of interesting short talks were delivered by business men who were among the guests. Mr. Calvin also gave a very interesting talk on the railroad situation and the business outlook, also touching on the Golden Spike celebration.

Mr. Calvin, who came to Ogden to meet with the railroad committee of the Golden Spike celebration, was tendered a reception in the Weber club earlier in the morning, but desired to see some of the industrial plants in this vicinity, which halted the reception.

In speaking of the railroad situation and the business outlook for Ogden, Mr. Calvin said:

"The future looks bright for Ogden. The city is possessed of an ideal geographical situation, and the same applies also to the railroad situation here. The contract had been let for a double track to complete the double track system all the way into this city from the east. The work was not done, however, but it will be in time."

Mr. Calvin paid a high tribute to W. H. Wattis, president of the Utah Construction company, saying that he was the one and only contractor whom he would permit to begin work on a contract before it was signed. "Mr. Wattis was always square and fair," said Mr. Calvin. "If there happened to be a loss to meet, he never hesitated to share it on a 50-50 basis."

In speaking of the celebration, Mr. Calvin said that it was arranged and is arranged as a modern home with the exception that it has an office connected.

George E. Mr. Stoddard states that he has had varied experience in hospitals, having been under the care of physicians in two hospitals in London, five in France and is now having a tryout at the hospitals of the United States.

The young man arrived in Hampton, Virginia, February 24 on the S. S. Huron and arrived in Salt Lake on March 13, his birthday.

BROWN—Charlene Brown, seven months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brown, died on April 9 at 9 p. m. The body was taken to the Kirkendall chapel to be prepared for funeral services.

Calvin said that the railroads would do all in their power to make it a success.

Mr. Calvin told a story of the tie into which the golden spike was driven on May 10th, 1869, saying that when he went to the Southern Pacific line in 1905 he was going through the shops at Sacramento one day and happened to go into an isolated building where some men and women were working on car seats, repairing the upholstery. In this place, all covered with dust he found the original tie, finely polished and bearing a silver plate on which was inscribed the event.

"I had this tie cleaned up and sent to the directors' room in my office in San Francisco for safe keeping. We had it placed on the wall. And then it was not long until the fire came along and the tie was burned with the other effects. If I had left it where I found it, and had not removed it for safe keeping, we would still have it."

WOMEN ARRESTED ARE FOUND TO HAVE WHISKEY

It is not often that the members of the sheriff's department receive surprises or "hard jolts" when they arrest violators of the state liquor law, but there was a surprise today and it came to Deputy Sheriff Robert Burk and T. H. Blackburn, when they stepped from the charge of having liquor in their possession, and were found to be sisters of a prominent city official. The women, who gave the fictitious names of Mrs. Mary Brown, 58 years of age, and Mrs. Edith Ammond, 42 years of age, were arrested at the union depot at 10:20 o'clock when they stepped from the charge of having liquor in their suit cases, each contained 18 pints of whiskey.

When the women got off the train, the two deputy sheriffs' attention was called to the fact that their suit cases seemed to be unusually heavy and that the owners seemed to be having difficulty in handling them. When the officers stepped up, the women first became indignant and then embarrassed. But they accompanied the

Typewriting Records of Smithsonian Institute

Helen Stauffer, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Bundy, a student of the Smithsonian institute, after spending a few months in school, has won the gold medal awarded by the Remington Typewriter Company, having made a record of sixty-four words per minute with only two errors. In other tests Miss Stauffer has made 60 words per minute for 15 minutes without error. These records are probably the highest speed that has been attained by any local school and illustrates what can be accomplished by young people who are willing to put forth the effort and follow the instruction given at the Smithsonian, and the student's success in making such excellent progress is due largely to the individual instruction received.

Three gold medals were awarded last year by students making records from 55 to 60 words per minute, and others will be given medals as soon as tests are given and are passed on by the Remington Company.

Night school students are among those aspiring for gold medal honors and are making excellent progress. Advertisement.

officers to an automobile, in which they were whisked away to the sheriff's office.

The women were recognized by the members of the department as the sisters of a well-known city official. They said they did not have money enough to pay their bail, but could procure it. The sheriff tendered the women the use of his private office to telephone to their brother. Then another difficulty arose. The brother was out of the city but a member of his family came to the sheriff's office and the amount of bail fixed by Judge D. R. Roberts of the city court was furnished.
